INNOVATION POINTS

There are plenty of sustainable practices that aren’t on the Green Office Program checklist. Innovation points are a way to earn credit for going above and beyond.

Below are some examples to use as a guide to starting and describing your own innovative practices.

- Reusing paper with print on only one side though a “One Side Clean” collection box.
- Collecting coffee grounds for composting.
- Ensure that all events hosted by your office follow the green event guidelines.
- Use software like Fineprint.com and greenprint.com to reduce the number of unwanted pages when printing from websites.
- Circulate newsletters, trade magazines, and supply catalogs in the department rather than subscribing individually.

➢ To receive innovation points, submit a narrative describing your office’s innovative sustainability practice to the Office of Campus Sustainability.
